NSA AFRICA

Headed by Rory Steyn, NSA Global Africa, a division of NSA Global Security Consultants and is the leading security service provider on the African continent, offering a full range of bespoke, value-added security services.

The continent of Africa, made up of 54 fully recognised sovereign states that cover a vast range of natural ecosystems and an even vaster range of cultures, is home to 1.2 billion people. Rich in natural resources, it offers huge opportunities and is home to some of the fastest growing economies in the world.

Despite this, Africa is seldom in the news for the right reasons. Whether it's the spread of the Ebola virus, political unrest, poverty, drought, deadly protests or terrorism; Africa can be a difficult and dangerous place to navigate and to operate in, requiring a real understanding of the extremely diverse societies, cultures and behaviours that exist in different parts of the continent.

For nearly 20 years, NSA has provided security support to many multi-national corporations, aid organisations, governments and high-profile people that require reliable security support in Africa, whether for large-scale expansion into the market or for occasional visits.

“Rory was appointed as a Team Leader of former President Mandela’s personal protection team”

OPERATIONS IN AFRICA

The nerve-centre of NSA Global’s Africa operation is based in Johannesburg and managed by highly skilled, former field-operatives who not only understand our clients’ particular requirements but can offer practical knowledge and skilled and experienced guidance and recommendations to our clients. The success of NSA is built on the passion, experience and expertise of its exceptional management staff.

Our operations manager in Africa is Jean Senekal who has more than 30 years of security experience in both the public and private sector. Prior to joining NSA in 1999, Jean served in the South Africa Air Force and the South African Army and brings a wealth of experience and a deep understanding of security strategy and resource deployment, executive protection and critical situation management for the continent of Africa.

Our CEO Rory Steyn is recognized as a highly experienced and independent leader, with extensive experience in security and personal protection. Prior to establishing NSA Global Security Consultants as CEO of Africa Operations, Rory served as a Lieutenant-Colonel in the South African Police Service where he specialised in various fields of expertise, including investigations, intelligence, VIP protection and bomb disposal. In 1996, Rory was appointed as a Team Leader of former President Mandela’s personal protection team, looking after operations on both a national and international level. Rory is an internationally recognised security specialist, speaker, commentator and regularly presents papers at conferences around the world.

Experience ■ Integrity ■ Discretion ■ Trust

As one of the leading specialised providers on the continent, NSA Global has established a wide range of contacts, leading to the development of strategic representative offices in many African countries, with established working relationships in others.

This powerful network allows us to provide a consistent level of service by combining the experience and expertise of our permanent staff with the local knowledge and resources of our strategic partners. Given the dynamic nature of doing business in Africa, we place a premium on the continued evolution, development and sustaining of this network. Our aim is to offer a discreet network of security specialists with first-hand knowledge of each country, its customs, languages, political and business elite, as well as the political, safety and security risks.

The safety and integrity of our clients, their families, corporate employees, property and information is our speciality and we are extremely proud that we maintain the highest performance standards in every service that we offer. Attention to detail is evident in any assignment that we undertake.
